Helping Our Heroes: Preventing Suicide among Oregon Soldiers addresses the escalating occurrence of suicide and addiction among returning soldiers and veterans, and the stress it causes their families, and provides them access to immediate help. The requested funds will be used as follows

Oregon Partnership, in collaboration with the Oregon National Guard and Veteran's Administration will provide a dedicated 24-hour Crisis Line in Oregon for returning soldiers and their families dealing with mental health, suicide, and alcohol and drug problems, including the recruitment and training of Iraq veterans as crisis line staff to answer calls from military members and their families.

Funding will provide cutting edge software and technology upgrades to improve response, data gathering, and training for the Crisis Line Call Center. Oregon Partnership operates Oregon's only certified statewide suicide line available 24 hours a day.

24-hour confidential triage for returning soldiers, veterans, and their families to "real-time" helping services (i.e., alcohol and drug treatment, mental health counseling, medical resources, and other support services).

Provide training and 24-hour support to military family life consultants seeking guidance for veterans who have severe PTSD, addiction and mental health problems.

8. Federal agency and account from which funds are requested (Please be specific –e.g. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Economic Development Initiatives account):

9. What is the purpose of the project? Why is it a valuable use of taxpayer funds? How will the project support efforts to improve the economy and create jobs in Oregon?

More than half of all veterans who took their own lives after returning from Iraq or Afghanistan were members of the National Guard or Reserve. As alarming, is that the rate of suicide among soldiers who have returned from war zones is at least double the number of troop suicides in war zones. Thousands of men and women also return with disabling injuries and mental health disorders that put them at higher risk for mental illness. Given the nature of injuries in the Iraq and Afghanistan wars and the strain associated with long and repeated deployments, the newer generation of veterans appears to be at greater risk of suicide. Add to that the difficulty combat vets face in dealing with failed relationships, financial and legal troubles, health care, and alcohol and other drug problems, it is not surprising that suicide rates are so alarming. Indeed, this represents a major public health crisis.

Oregon Partnership and the Oregon National Guard and the V.A. have laid the foundation for a vital collaboration to begin addressing the issues of suicide, alcohol and/or drug addiction, PTSD and other problems. This project will improve Oregon’s economy by addressing addiction and mental health problems that are so costly to taxpayers.
