

Set amidst the rugged backdrop of the West Hills, the Multnomah Village neighborhood offers a walkable, friendly destination for many Southwest Portlanders. Congressman Blumenauer toured this community on Thursday, taking the opportunity to visit several of the small businesses that make up this historic and growing part of the city convening an informal roundtable at O'Connor's Restaurant for a more focused discussion on community and economic issues. Members of the Multnomah Neighborhood Association, the Multnomah Block Initiative, the Multnomah Village Business Association and others joined the Congressman as he listened to the concerns of local, small businesses that focused on healthcare reform, transportation needs, and access to capital.
